Description of Defect, how it came to light, and possible consequences if ignored.	Lock nuts with possible production deviations may have been installed in steering systems in extremely unlikely cases. If an affected steering was installed in affected vehicle, the lock nut could break and the steering could lock under the influence of very high lateral forces on the steering – as most likely occur at low speeds, for example, upon contact with the curb when maneuvering or parking. This would increase the risk of an accident.
Remedial Action	Check the electric power steering on affected vehicles as a precautionary measure and replace it if necessary.
